STABBING FRAY MAY END FATALLY

Dora Reardon is Jabbed Just Below
Heart With Knife by Omer Foreman.

TROUBLE AT WILLIAMSTOWN

Is Outgrowth of Jest Leveled at Foreman When he Refused to Take Dare.

A stabbing fray, which may result fatally for Dora Reardon of Williamstown, occurred in front of the church in Williamstown last night about eight-thirty o'clock as the outcome of a mere jest. Omer Foreman, who was suddenly angered by Reardon's playful assertion that Foreman was too much of a coward to go into the street and fight Byron Smith after they had had a few hot words, turned on Reardon and stuck his knife into Reardon's side just below the heart.

Physicians who attended Reardon say that he is not fatally injured, but that complications may arise which will result in his death. The knife was jabbed into Reardon's chest cavity and only narrowly missed penetrating his heart. The wound was inflicted just about an inch below his heart and is deep enough to have caused instant death had it been made directly over his heart. The knife penetrated Reardon's side between the fifth and sixth rib.

Although no arrests had been made this morning it was expected that some action would be taken. It is reported that Charles Reardon of Williamstown, father of the injured lad, has said since the fight that he will take steps to prosecute Foreman at once.

A crowd of young fellows was gathered in front of the church there last night as is their custom when services are held. The boys were enjoying themselves by scuffling and throwing one another about on the ground. The play became more serious and the boys were rather rough with each other.

According to the most authentic reports of the trouble from Williamstown, Omer Foreman accused Byron Smith of jabbing him in the ribs to hard during the scuffling. Smith denied that he had hit Foreman at all. It is said that one word led to another until the two lads were angry. Other members of the crowd, so it is said, added a word occasionally to push the matter and make it worse until the argument assumed a serious aspect.

It is said that Smith is small of stature but is willing to match himself with anybody in the town when it comes to feats of strength. He was taunted by the other boys in the crowd until he offered to fight. It is said that Smith walked out into the street and dared Foreman to come out. It is reported that Smith said he would make him "take back" every word he uttered if he would come into the street and fight.

According to several people in Williamstown, Foreman refused to take up the dare. He remained in the crowd and seemed unwilling to take part in any fistie encounters. But if he was to refuse the offer to fight he was compelled to suffer the jeers and the sneers of the crowd. It is said that several in the crowd of youths, in a sneering manner, pointed out that Smith was very small and that Foreman should have no fear of him. Reardon, so it is said, was one of the first to urge the fight on and made several very impertinent remarks to Foreman which served to make him more angry.

After Reardon made one especially caustic remark, Foreman, who was standing close to him turned suddenly and jabbed the open knife which he had secretly taken out of his pocket, into Reardon's breast. Reardon was carried to his home and physicians hastily summoned.

If any action is taken it is not known in what county officers of the law will be consulted. Today Sheriff Bebout had received no call to come there. Williamstown is located directly on the Rush-Decatur county line and it is a question as to which county has jurisdiction.

ELUSIVE CRICKET DISTURBS SERVICE

Sounds Its Plaintive and Shriill Notes
During Impressive Moments at Turner Farewell Meeting.

ATTEMPTS TO ROUT IT FAIL

An inoffensive, yet withal that elusive, cricket disturbed the farewell service for the Rev. J. W. Turner at the St. Paul M. E. church last evening by its persistent chirping. It would not be routed after several attempts were made to put it to flight. Just at impressive moments in the service the cricket would sound its plaintive and shriill notes much to the amusement of the audience in the back part of the church. The janitor was unable to locate the little black thing and he called an usher to his assistance. Search as carefully as they might the cricket could not be discovered by them and it was finally left to itself to chirp to its heart's content.

SORRY RECIPROCITY WAS PUT TO ROUT

Finly Gray in Interview at Richmond
Declares he Was Disappointed
by its Defeat.

HE VOTED FOR IT BUT—

Finly H. Gray of Connorsville, congressman from the Sixth district, was in Richmond Saturday and conversed with several prominent Democrats, says the Richmond Palladium. To a reporter Congressman Gray stated that he was disappointed in a way, over the defeat of reciprocity as a result of the Canadian election Thursday. He said that the reciprocity treaty contained a number of good points for a closer trade relationship between the United States and Canada and that he voted for the treaty for this reason. But he asserted that the pact did not contain all points which should have been incorporated in it.

The next session of Congress which convenes in December, will be taken up with the consideration of the tariff, according to Congressman Gray's opinion. He declared that attempts would be made to lower all tariff schedules.

UNION MEET AT M. E. CHURCH

Expresses Appreciation of Brilliant
Assemblage—Will be Associate Minister at New Albany.

"Christian people of Rushville, I want to express my personal appreciation of this brilliant assemblage here tonight," said the Rev. J. W. Turner last evening in preaching his farewell sermon in Rushville as pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church. "I do not feel that it is so much an expression of feeling for my labors here, but rather of the unity and love which exists among the churches of Rushville. My brothers here have closed their churches so that this meeting was made possible.

"Our association together in this city has been very pleasant. No unkind words have ever passed between us and we have worked harmoniously together. I hope they will receive the new minister who is to come here as they have treated me. In some respects I am sorry our association together has ended. In other respects I believe it is for the best. I believe it is the guiding of the Divine hand and that there is a place for me somewhere. As it is now I am in the Bishop's vest pocket and he will take me from it and place me where he wishes. I expect to preach the gospel as long as I have breath and mental ability."

The Rev. Mr. Turner's subject for his closing sermon was "The Relation of the Pew to the Pulpit and the Pulpit to the Pew." In a certain sense, the speaker said, the audience sits before a minister for its portrait and if the minister does not get a perfect negative he is liable to God. The Rev. Mr. Turner asserted that true ministers are chosen of God and that the shield of heaven is never placed before an imposter.

The preacher used the life and

FINDS MUSEUM IN INDIANA TOWN

Local Auto Party Makes Rare Discovery in Quaint Village in Henry County.

COLLECTION OF GREAT VALUE

Head of Assassin of Grant, Well Preserved in Alcohol, is to be Found There.

The members of a party of local autoists who motored to New Castle and other points in Henry county yesterday were surprised and even more than mystified, by the discovery they made in a little town of one hundred and fifty inhabitants, called Springport, which is located on the main line of the L. E. & W. between New Castle and Muncie. They found there the most complete private collection of valuable relics in the United States. The owner, T. J. Worth, who is a man of seventy-five years, declares that his museum is the most complete one owned by any citizen in the United States.

The quaint building in which it is housed is located at the foot of an unassuming alley in the little town and it would never be discovered were it not for a little sign at the head of the alley announcing the fact that a museum is to be found some place in the near vicinity.

The local people could scarcely believe that such a thing be real when they stepped into the house and saw the mammoth array of valuable and quaint relics. They declare that the collection is valued at one million dollars and that it consists of many things of ages past which would be held to be worth much in dollars and cents.

In the museum is the coat which General Grant is supposed to have worn on the battle field. The head of a man which the owner of the museum asserts is the head of the assassin of Grant, is to be found in the museum. It is kept in a perfect state in a bottle of alcohol. Members of the party who were there yesterday say that the wounds on the

The police were called upon Saturday night to arrest a man who is alleged to have pulled a gun on Jesse West. The trouble took place in the alley north of Second street and when the police arrived the "bad man" ran. Chief McAllister gave chase but the man turned west in Third street and was soon lost in the crowd in Main street. West did not know who the man was and the officers were unable to learn his name.

MILROY BOOSTERS VISIT THIS CITY

"Flying Squadron" Advertising the Fall Festival Was Here Saturday Night.

WILL BE HELD OCT. 5, 6, AND 7

Eighteen automobiles filled with boosters for the Milroy Fall Festival visited this city Saturday night. The autos entered the city from the south and paraded through the business district and then back to the court house square, where Dr. C. S. Hoagland made a brief address in which he invited the people of Rushville to visit Milroy on October 5, 6, and 7, the dates of their Fall Festival and Home-coming. A quartet composed of Prof. A. M. Taylor, Everett Bottorff, Donald Bottorff and James Fage sang several selections. Milroy is making an extensive advertising campaign with the "flying squadron" and from the number of machines and people here Saturday night it seemed as though they had literally moved the town here.

CASE, SIX YEARS OLD, IS CLOSED

Fairley Property Sold Today Which Marks Close of Aged Law
Suit in Court.

CRIMINAL CASES NOT ARGUED

The Fairley property in East Fourth street was sold this afternoon by Frank J. Hall, which marks the end of a suit which has been in the court for six years. The sale of the property was brought about by the filing of a suit by Elizabeth Poundstone, who has a life estate in it, against Frank J. Hall, as administrator of the estate of Lucinda Fairley. John P. Fairley was administrator of his wife's estate until he died, when Mr. Hall was named. The property was sold to Lewis Oneal, who offered ten per cent more than Mrs. George Wingerter, who had purchased it.

The case of the State against Hord, Cross and Cross, in which a motion to quash has been filed, was not argued today due to the fact that the matter has been left in the hands of John C. Cheney, deputy prosecutor of Shelby county, who conducted the grand jury that returned the indictment. It will be delayed until Mr. Cheney can appear.

The motion to quash the charge against Henry Osborne of Connorsville, who is indicted for killing Rupert Chrisman, did not materialize today as it was reported it would.

WOMAN BARELY ESCAPES DEATH

Mrs. Levi Addison of Arlington
Leaves Building Few Secnds
Before it is Crushed.

BY C. H. & D. DRIVE-WHEEL

It is Hurlled From Locomotive While Train Traveled 55 Miles an Hour.

Had Mrs. Levi Addison of Arlington remained in the small outbuilding at her home many seconds longer Saturday afternoon, she would undoubtedly have been killed as she had not walked many feet from the building before a big drive-wheel off of a C. H. & D. engine crashed through the frail structure. The wheel was hurled from the engine pulling a westbound passenger train which was running about fifty-five miles an hour.

In some manner the big drive-wheel became loose and slipped off just as the train was traveling through Arlington. The speed of the train caused the wheel to be sent through the air with a terrific impetus. It so happened that the wheel crashed into the little building which Mrs. Addison had just left a few seconds before.

She turned to see the train go by when the wheel left the engine and was dashed through the frail building. There is no doubt but that Mrs. Addison would have been killed had she remained in the shed many seconds longer. The wheel was hurled through the air with such force that it crushed one side of the frail building and fell inside of it.

The train was brought to a stop just outside of Arlington before the engine was derailed. Passengers on the train were badly frightened when they learned what had happened, but the danger had all passed at that time when the train had been brought to a stop. Passengers were speculating that many people would have been killed and injured had the engine been derailed by the accident as the train was traveling so fast.

Trainmen say, however, that there was never any danger of the engine being derailed in such an accident. There are three large drive-wheels on each side and the absence of one is not very likely to cause the engine to leave the rails.

Passengers on the train got off and stood around the train while the repairs were being made. They expressed many opinions, one being that the loose drive-wheel, by the merest chance, might have been caught in the other wheels and wrecked the engine. Trainmen say that there is no danger of that in an accident such as the one Saturday as is evidenced by the fact that the wheel went off from the engine at a right angle.

The accident did not delay traffic very long. A flagman was sent ahead to stop the eastbound passenger which is due here at 3:40 and it was brought to a stop until the other train was backed on to a side track. A number of the passengers on the train boarded the westbound I. & C. car which passed through Arlington shortly after the accident and went on to Indianapolis.

Daffydil Doings Down In Dippy Dell

Smith Carney started to drive to the farm the other day with his old bay filly when he noticed a bum out at the side of the road. The bum hit him for a ride and Smith said he guessed he could give the poor unfortunate one a lift for a few rods anyway. The hobo hopped into the buggy and all went well for a few paces when the seventeen-year-old nag sighted an automobile in the distance. She began to snort and pricked up her ears at the smell of gasoline and Smith knew there was trouble brewing. He warned the bum to alight while he could do so with becoming grace, but the fellow rider vociferated and said he could stick around since he was a cavalryman in the civil war. When the machine was near the chauffeur realized that the horse was in grave danger of dying from fright. He clutched for the clutch and threw the hooks into the brakes at once. But he was too late, the fracas had started. Such a melee! After the dust had subsided and Smith and the autoist had finished arguing as to where the blame lay, they began to wonder where the stranger was. They searched through the fields and the forests and they had visions of standing trial for the murder of an innocent man. They heard a splatter over about the machine and they hurried to the side of the panting monster. There in the gasoline tank sprawled the victim of the mix-up. They dragged him forth and he gurgled as the gasoline oozed from his mouth and ears:

"If a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, what's Charlie Worth?"

Get under the table, Fido, you're all wet.

HORRID END OF MERRY MAKING

Fast Train Crashes Into Party of Hay Riders.

THE DEADLY GRADE CROSSING

Of a Party of Thirty Wisconsin Young People Thirteen Were Killed and Many Others Received Injuries Which Are Expected to Terminate Fatally—Driver Thought He Had Time to Cross in Safety.

Neenah, Wis., Sept. 25.—When a Northwestern passenger train early Sunday morning struck a hayrack filled with Menasha merry-makers at a grade crossing on the southern outskirts of this city, thirteen persons were killed, ten instantly, and nine others injured. Of those not killed instantly, two died on the way to the hospital and one fifteen minutes after reaching the hospital. All but three of the victims were from Menasha. Of the injured two will die, and others are presumably fatally injured.

The thirty young people were returning from a dance at the home of Peter Hanson, who lives on the road to Oshkosh, and they were singing as the big hayrack was pulled up the slight incline to the Northwestern crossing a mile south of the station in this city. The next instant the speeding passenger train, bound for the north, had plowed through the rear end of the big farm wagon and twenty-two of the thirty occupants were scattered for 200 feet along the railroad right-of-way, dead, dying or dangerously hurt. Those in the front of the wagon escaped almost without bruises. "I thought I had plenty of time to cross the track ahead of the train," groaned Peter Hanson, who was returning with his guests of the evening, "and when I started to go down the hill on the left side of the track I was so sure the train was still a considerable distance away that I even checked the horses to go down the incline slowly. Then the train tore off the wagon, just back of the driver's seat."

While the fast passenger train was being brought to a stop a couple of hundred yards from the scene of the crash, one of the survivors had rushed to a fire-alarm box near the grade crossing and pulled the alarm.

fire department responded with all the apparatus in the city, and the injured were soon being hurried to Clark hospital. The dead were frightfully mangled. Six corpses were taken from the pilot of the locomotive.

The members of the party were nearly all young people employed in the mills about Neenah. The oldest except the driver, were two young married couples. One young bride and bridegroom died together.

BROKE UP GANG

West Virginia Counterfeiters Punished in Federal Court.

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 25.—There came to an end in the federal court here the most interesting series of counterfeiting cases ever tried in this section of West Virginia, resulting in six persons indicted for counterfeiting being given sentences aggregating thirty years in prison.

In the gang rounded up by the federal officers were men of mature years and mere children, women young in years but old in experience, and one gray-haired mother, Mrs. Isabella Leonard, who won the sympathy of Judge Keller and whose sentence was suspended.

Jack Wilson, the notorious leader of the gang, was given ten years, this being the second time that he has been convicted of counterfeiting. Mercer M. Leonard got a sentence of five years; Mrs. Esther Folden, two years in the state prison; Riley Folden, four years; John Leonard, a sixteen-year-old boy, was sentenced to two years in the national training school, and James Leonard, an eleven-year-old youngster, also got two years in the training school.

GOV. STUBBS

Kansas Executive Who Gave President a Warm Welcome.

INSURGENT KANSAS WELCOMES MR. TAFT

Governor Stubbs Made the Same Official.

Baldwin, Kan., Sept. 25.—Governor Stubbs, the fighting insurgent executive of this state, met the president Sunday at Lawrence, where Mr. Taft addressed the students of the University of Kansas. Here is the governor's welcome: "I hope that Kansas, without regard to church, party or faction, will give President Taft the most royal welcome that a president ever received."

Governor Stubbs accompanied the Taft special to this town and spent the day with the president. Senator Bristow was at the station here to meet the president. Senator Curtis accompanied the president and will stick with him through his stay in the state.

Mr. Taft was in Baldwin to attend the ceremonies incident to the installation of Dr. W. N. Mason as president of Baker university. The university is sectarian and the religious atmosphere was dominant throughout the day. Politics were watched for closely, but they did not crop out except in the appearance of the insurgent Senator Bristow and the introductions of the president by Governor Stubbs. The president had six towns on his schedule today and will reach Kansas City at 6:30 this evening.

GROSS FRAUDS AT BALTIMORE

Six Election Officers Arrested in One Precinct.

THERE ARE MORE TO FOLLOW

Grand Jury Investigation of the Recent Primaries Reveals a Condition of Things That Is Opening the Eyes of the People to the Manner in Which Nominations Have Been Controlled There in the Past.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 25.—Before the grand jury's investigation of the recent primaries in which the grossest frauds are being brought to light, the Democratic machine in Baltimore, which for a quarter of a century has ruled the town and dictated the nomination of candidates for mayor, sheriff and city councils, is tottering and the big bosses are quaking. Six election officers indicted and arrested in one precinct is but the beginning of the prosecution. Some of Baltimore's leading men, including former Mayors Hayes and Mahool, in vigorous interviews, have scathingly denounced the poll bosses and their tools.

These interviews indicate how tremendously indignant the whole city is over the frauds which have been uncovered, and evidence the strength of the public sentiment which will back up the grand jury in this wholesale probe of election trickery.

This grand jury probe will not stop merely with the little fellows. There is enough evidence at hand to warrant the jury to think frauds were widespread, and the suspected precincts will be counted first and the judges and clerks will be indicted at once. Then will follow a recount of all the other precincts.

Since the probe began and the fact that there was fraud in the primary has been established, some of the Democratic ward bosses have declared in private that a recount of the vote will simply amaze Baltimore. One prominent ward leader said the recount will probably show that State Senator Lee, the anti-organization candidate for nomination for governor, carried two city districts and that Owens and Wheatley were both nominated for judges.

If Senator Lee did carry two city legislative districts, he would, if the vote had been honestly counted, have had enough delegates in the convention to have given the nomination to him instead of State Senator Arthur P. Gorman, who was nominated by a margin of but one vote.

RUMORS OF WAR

Italy and Turkey at Swords' Points Over Tripoli.

London, Sept. 25.—Rumors of Italian naval and military preparations and even the disembarkation of troops near Tripoli are rife. In the absence of official information the rumors intensify the anxiety. News has arrived at Port Said that the Turks have captured the Italian liner Regina Margherita at Mersina, which is on the Mediterranean near Adana. The Italian liner Belfiore, which is now at Port Said, has postponed her departure for Syrian ports because of fear of seizure. It is rumored further that Italy is mobilizing 112,000 troops and that reserves landed at Tripoli have seized a Turkish ship and ammunition.

A correspondent at Rome, who is usually well informed, is told that the moment has arrived for Italy to realize her right in Tripoli. It is a national question of first importance and must be settled now at all costs. Italy's suggestion is the cession of Tripoli on lease, with Turkey's suzerainty maintained, for a round sum or an annual tribute.

A Turkish official is quoted as saying that "no transaction aiming at open or disguised cession is possible. If we must fight it will be desperately. I hope that Italy will reflect upon the consequences of the step, as it would threaten a European uprising in addition to war between Italy and Turkey."

ENCOURAGES LABOR TO SEEK REFORMS

Perkins Emphasizes Need of Compensation Law.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 25.—A new child labor law that "actually will remove children from Indiana factories," support of a workmen's compensation act, the revival of the shot firers' bill, defeated in the 1911 legislature, and various other reforms affecting labor will be recommended by Edgar A. Perkins of Indianapolis, president of the State Federation of Labor, in his report to the federation, which opens its twenty-seventh annual convention here tomorrow. Mr. Perkins will emphasize the need of a workmen's compensation law and will urge that a committee be appointed to study the question and gather such data as may form the basis of a legislative measure to be supported by the federation.

Routine matters will come up Wednesday morning, and in the afternoon the election of officers will be held. Interest centers in the election, with both administration and anti-administration forces firing up the political pot. A trolley ride and dinner will be followed in the evening by a fireworks display.

On Thursday afternoon the selection of the next meeting place will be made. Terre Haute is leader in the race for the honor, while it is said Fort Wayne is in a receptive mood.

RHEUMATISM

Yields Readily to Simple Remedy—Well-Known American Chemist Discovers Process for Making Sulphur Soluble.

For centuries it was known to the great men of medical science that if Nature has provided a certain, yet simple remedy for Rheumatism, Gout and Blood Disease, the hope of those so afflicted lay in the use of sulphur.

And now Nature has given up her secret. A great chemist has succeeded in making sulphur as soluble as sugar or salt. Heretofore sulphur could be and was taken with great benefit even though insoluble, but now it can be absorbed directly into the blood and thus accomplish wonderfully curative results.

SULFOSOL is the name of this new vitalizer of the blood, this expeller of uric acid and other blood taints and conqueror of Rheumatism and Gout. Will This Be Your Home?

When the snow falls, and the cold winds sweep 'round your home, will your wife and children inside be warm and comfortable and happy? Will every room in the house be opened up---every bedroom heated?

Or will the greater part of the house be closed up---unused during the entire winter? Will your children have to undress and go to bed in cold, unhealthy rooms? Will your wife be complaining of the frigid atmosphere of the few rooms that are not closed---because the stove does not heat them as it should?

Which Will be Your Home?

You can have every room in your house warm and comfortable on the coldest day of winter---and with less expense than is necessary to heat just a few rooms with an ordinary stove---if you buy a FAVORITE BASE BURNER.

A FAVORITE BASE BURNER will keep every part of your house warm all winter, and do it with from two to three tons of coal. Every square inch of the Favorite radiates heat which constantly circulates throughout the home, keeping every part of it at an even temperature, night and day.

Don't compare the Favorite with any other heating stove. The triple exposed flues and back---the "paper-tight" construction---the beauty of design---put the Favorite in a class by itself.

Not Salts, Oil or Pills, But Cascarets

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious—Cascarets Make You Feel Great.

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Carearet tonight will straighten you out by morning—a ten-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

Kansas Senator Forgets His Insurgency for the Moment.

GET-RICH-QUICKERS BROUGHT UP SHORT

Uncle Sam's Men Make an Important Raid.

New York, Sept. 25.—Ex-United States Treasurer D. N. Morgan, the Rev. James T. Shock, Jared Flagg, Jr., the 52 per cent stock expert, Lawyer Alvin M. Higgins, and the four other men arrested with them in Saturday's raid of Flagg's brokerage office, spent Sunday in the Tombs. Flagg's attorney said that he would try to get bail for the eight as quickly as possible. Higgins formerly lived at Terre Haute, Ind.

There are likely to be several developments in the case of the newest Flagg enterprise today. The postoffice inspectors, while well pleased with the capture of the eight prisoners, are not quite satisfied yet. Two more men and one woman will have to be found and questioned before the government detectives will regard their work as at all complete.

Efforts will be begun at once looking toward the appointment of a receiver for Flagg's enterprise. There are certain of Flagg's customers who have been trying for some time, it is said, to get back their principal. Although the dividend of 1 per cent a week has been paid regularly, it is said that these customers were unable to get back their principal. Because of the enormous interest paid the postoffice inspectors say that not many of the customers even wanted their money back.

The government folks said that nearly two years ago Flagg practically promised not to use the mails for his business, and that thereafter much of the correspondence was done in the name of D. N. Morgan and Lawyer Higgins. Both of these, the postoffice inspectors say, were very active in the letter writing part of the business.

WILL TRY IT AGAIN

Fowler Hasn't Given Up Attempt to Fly Over the Sierras.

Emigrant Gap, Cal., Sept. 25.—Aviator Fowler, on his ocean-to-ocean trip, made a second attempt to cross the Sierras again last evening, and after battling with treacherous air currents for two hours, was obliged to turn back when within a few hundred feet of the summit, when his engine stopped dead. He will try again.

Rodgers Gets a Setback.

Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A barbed wire fence stopped Cal P. Rodgers, the coast-to-coast aviator flying for a $50,000 prize. His aeroplane is wrecked twenty-five miles east of here at a little place called Red House. It will take two days to make repairs.

THEN SHE FAINTED

Tennessee Woman Collapsed in Court When Her Charge Failed.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Fainting from exhaustion and nervous collapse, Mrs. E. D. Wilson, Jonesboro, Ark., was carried from the city court when Judge Bacon freed Thomas Farmer, a wealthy planter from Dyersburg, Tenn., on a charge of assault.

Farmer was arrested in a room at the Trenton hotel following complaint of the woman to the effect that he had beguiled her into his room and forcibly caused her to submit to his advances. Mrs. Wilson is now destitute, declaring she exhausted her funds remaining in Memphis, and employing counsel to fight her suit.

Big Naval Airship Collapses.

London, Sept. 25.—The first naval airship built for the British government, at a cost of $400,000, was wrecked Sunday at Barrow in Furness. It is an absolute wreck and had never been flown. Apparently the center of the huge frame, which was 512 feet long, was weak and the pressure of a light breeze made it part as it left the shed stern first. No one was killed.

TWO TOWNS GO ON "WET" LIST

Muncie and Marion Will Again Have Saloons.

BY A RULING OF THE COURT

Applicants For Licenses Had Their Prospective Places of Business All Ready For Opening and There Will Be Little Delay in Dispensing the Stuff That Has For Two Years Been Barred in Those Towns.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 25.—When Judge Bagot formally rendered his decision in the Second ward remonstrance cases, and then granted licenses to twenty-six applicants, Muncie became "wet." The remonstrators say an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

It probably will be Wednesday before any of the licenses are taken out, as the applicants must wait until the court record is made up. The applicants have agreed among themselves to open up at one time.

Saloons Ready to Be Opened.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 25.—Following his decision on the Marion liquor cases in the Grant circuit court, through which practically every legal contention of the "drys" was swept aside, Judge Nash, acting as special magistrate, granted twenty-one licenses for the retailing of liquors in the city and five wholesalers' licenses. Saloons will be opened at once, as all of the men who obtained licenses have their places in readiness.

BROUGHT HIM BACK

Relatives of Alleged Wife Murderer Don't Encourage Jail Breaking.

Noblesville, Ind., Sept. 25.—Harry Hiatt of Cicero, accused of murdering his wife, who escaped from the county jail here, returned and was locked up again. He was accompanied to the jail by his father and brother, who persuaded him to return. After getting out of jail Hiatt says he walked ten miles to his father's home, and that he merely wanted to visit his people. Everett Moore, charged with "bootlegging," who escaped with Hiatt, has not been found.

Friends Reorganize Academy.

Westfield, Ind., Sept. 25.—The Friends academy in this place, founded fifty years ago, has opened under the name "Union Bible Seminary." The principal change in the organization is the founding of a seminary for the training of Friends' ministers, missionaries, Bible school teachers and other Christian workers, to which the academic and graded departments become tributary.

Bottle Works Destroyed.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 25.—Two hundred men were thrown out of employment when flames consumed the bottle factory of the Diamond Flint Glass company. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The fire was caused, it is said, by the explosion of a tank of chemicals and had gained such headway when discovered that all efforts to extinguish it were futile.

Girl's Suit Creates Sensation.

Wabash, Ind., Sept. 25.—Miss Zula Allispaugh, North Manchester, has filed a $10,000 breach of promise suit against J. Reuben Rosen of the same town. The defendant and Miss Irma O'Neal were united in marriage a few days ago. Miss O'Neal is one of the wealthiest young women in Wabash county. The suit has created a sensation here.

Friends Picked Jail Lock.

Edinburg, Ind., Sept. 25.—Joseph Brawner, aged seventeen, who was in the lockup here on a charge of assault and battery with intent to murder Gordon Weaver, seventeen years old, escaped. Friends of the prisoner, it is alleged, picked the lock on the jail.

Run Down by an Auto.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 25.—August Bonner, a prominent meat dealer, is dead from concussion of the brain caused by being hit by an automobile at a street crossing. He was sixty-five years old and one of the leading German citizens of Lafayette.

Took It Under Advisement.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 25.—After hearing arguments from both sides, Special Judge Van Fleet, sitting in the Gary bribery cases at Crown Point, announced that he would give a decision in the change of venue question on next Saturday.

Killed by Mule Kick.

Princeton, Ind., Sept. 25.—Raymond Green, thirteen years old, employed with a construction force on the roads near here, was kicked on the head by a mule and died of his injuries.

Drops Gun; Shot In Foot.

Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 25.—Claude Walton threw a gun across a stream ahead of his leap, while hunting. The gun was discharged, the bullet going through Walton's foot.

The modern county fair crowd kicks if the aeroplanist does not go up in a gale, when you couldn't persuade them to drive Dobbin into town on a dark night.

Mrs. Taft does the White house marketing herself which is looked on as a heroic deed. According to modern standards, if she looked after the cooking in the kitchen, she would be entitled to a place among the martyrs.

Getting together! Well, it looks that way when the near-Republican Chicago Tribune comes out squarely in approval of President Taft's veto messages, says the Huntington Herald. If the Herald doesn't miss its guess the Republican party will have but one political organization to lick next year—the same old Democratic party that it has trounced so often in the past half century.

October 8 is designated by Gov. Marshall as "Fire Prevention Day." All residents of the State will be called upon to get their places in readiness for starting winter fires. If every resident will observe this day there will be fewer fires and property losses. On that day, if not before, all flues and chimneys should be inspected. All trash and rubbish should be removed from danger spots and all stoves and pipes carefully looked after.

New Yorkers are now to get their first taste of pawpaws, as a consignment of the luscious Hoosier bananas has just been sent there in care of the New York Herald, says the Muncie Press. The Herald recently published an article describing the Indiana pawpaw and New York refused to believe it and asked to be shown. So it seems that Manhattan has never become acquainted with the pawpaw—and yet the inhabitants of Gotham claim that they have been living all these years.

Speaking of climate, no part of the world has anything on old Indiana at this season of the year—and October in the middle west is finer than anything Colorado or California have to offer. Indiana's wealth of deciduous trees makes the Hoosier landscape in autumn as beautiful as any effect nature is capable of producing. The late summer rains have made the fields vividly green and above this carpet the flames of yellow and red are kindling in the forests. The man who leaves Indiana before the first of November is missing the finest climate and the most charming landscape that are anywhere to be experienced.

It is customary, when one becomes grown-up, to look back with a certain degree of pride on one's boyish exploits in the pilfering of fruit. The man who has not as a youth raided apple orchards and grape vines right and left feels that he has had a molly coddle boyhood.

Many people take a very good natured attitude about these depredations, and regard it as useless for any one living in a town of any size to hope to raise fruit except at a long distance from human habitations.

This is, however, rather rough on the many people who are becoming interested in good horticulture, and who are putting in a lot of work in developing prolific vines and orchards.

Is it a wise plan to allow young America to grow up feeling that he has unlimited license to reap the benefit of some one other person's labor? Will the boy who has no qualms about enjoying luscious fruit that other people have spent time and money to develop, be very careful when he grows up, to render dollar for dollar in the business transactions of the street? We doubt it.

The editor of a rural newspaper occupies a unique position in the field of journalism—his rival, the city editor, may have more responsibilities and a larger scope of action, but he is seldom known to the public. The country editor is, however, known to everybody and his personality is familiar to all. He may exert a powerful influence on the community through this close personal contact. The country editor, remarks the Spartansburg (Pa.) Sentinel, ushers the newly-born citizen into the world, watches his progress to manhood and womanhood, rejoices at the happy marriages and notes with appropriate solemnity the exit of the person from the plane of life's activity. Thus the country editor is known to all and everybody knows him. The village newspaper is the record of a community: joys and sorrows alike receive the editor's sympathy; he admonishes when necessary and gives praise when it is due. He is our advisor and guide of public opinion. This close companionship should work for good. The field of the rural newspaper is equalled by none. Let us assist the country editor in the work and his building up a brighter social organization.

"If the party can not succeed by advocating a certain principle, however, meritorious that principle may be, is it not better for the party to succeed without advocating that principle?" says an exchange in discussing the attitude of the Republican party on local option.

The Marion Chronicle adds the following: If the Republican party were really that kind of a party, it would never have been born. The men who nominated Fremont for President in 1856 had no serious idea of immediate success. They were something more than an association of job hunters and seekers of power. They knew they were right on a principle involving vitally the welfare of the commonwealth, and that was enough for them. But there is no theory more fallacious than that the Republican party in Indiana can succeed by going back of its own record, its own traditions, and the convictions of the vast majority of the rank and file by refusing to speak out on a question that is paramount with the people, whatever the politicians may think of it. The Republican party can win in Indiana next year by taking an equivocal position in favor of the people's theory of local option and against the brewery brand—and on any other platform it will fail as miserably next year as it did last year.

SHOULD PREACH GOSPEL, HE SAYS

preaching of Paul all through his sermon as an illustration. He said that he was not comparing himself with Paul, but that he wished it to be understood that he is a servant of the Master. He said that Paul is held up as the model preacher. He pointed out that Paul had many physical deformities and that the great minister believed that it was so that he would be kept in subjection.

The Rev. Mr. Turner asserted that he would work as long as he was permitted to for the glory of God and that he wished he might be able to say at death that he had tried to do his best for God's glory.

The Rev. Mr. Turner said that if Paul should preach in Corinth today, he would make people mad. To preach the truth, he said, would cause trouble, while misrepresented truth would be all right. He decried the fact that some people would rather hear a doctrinal sermon. He asked if a minister should tell the people they are sinners for their own good and if a minister should fear the opinions of his own flock. He declared that a dieting gospel is worse than none at all. He urged that the members of the church assist the minister as much as possible and reiterated that he had no faith in a member who would not co-operate with a preacher in his labors. They should work together harmoniously, he asserted.

"Some congregations take all of the vim out of a preacher," he continued. "A preacher may step in the pulpit, and if he observes very closely, he will realize that there are some people there to hear how he says it and not what he says. It is common for the congregation to criticize its pastor. If you want your preacher to stand boldly in his place you should sympathize with him."

"On the other hand," he declared, "ministers should not preach above the heads of their congregations.

Simplicity should be the keynote of every sermon. A minister may preach so that only the learned understand. How often is the gospel like blank cartridges when it should be loaded with lead? I have been a minister for thirty-two years and the cry of humanity today is not give us bread, not give us chalk water, not give us bones, but rather give up the gospel. It is not give us excellency of speech or doctrinal sermons. It is give us the plain gospel of Jesus Christ."

The Rev. Mr. Turner said preachers should point out that the Lord put His royal robes about them so that it would be possible to see Him through them. He alluded to the great calling of the ministry and what it means. He said that they depended on the faith they have in the power of God rather than in man's wisdom. He saw fit to attack the unbelievers who believe in man's wisdom instead of having faith in God's power.

"People in Rushville," he said in concluding his sermon, "have faith in God's power to change these vile natures of ours; have faith in His power to give you immortal life when you are dying; have faith in His power to bring us all to the enjoyment of His heavenly home."

After he had finished his sermon the Rev. Mr. Turner made a brief invitation to the unsaved to accept Christ. He said that he wished to express his appreciation of the kindness shown him during his ministry here by the people who are not church members. He pointed out that he had been preaching to them for two years and that he wished to make his last call to those not of Christ.

It was at the earnest request of the Rev. W. H. Wylie, the new pastor of the church, that the Rev. Mr. Turner preached both sermons yesterday. Generally the new pastors assume their respective places the first Sunday after the conference.

A large crowd was present in the morning to hear the Rev. Mr. Turner. He chose for his topic, "Love" and impressed the audience with the thought that all acts of kindness and charity, in order to be recognized by God must be inspired by love.

For the present the Rev. Mr. Turner will be the associate pastor of the Trinity M. E. church at New Albany.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL FROM CAR

Albert Ray, Fairland Tinner, Expires of Concussion of Brain Following Accident.

HE TOPPLES OFF AT CURVE

Albert Ray, aged thirty-five years, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ray of Fairland, who was fatally injured on Saturday afternoon when he fell from the rear platform of an I. & C. traction car in Shelbyville, died at one o'clock this morning.

The attending physician called another physician into consultation on Sunday evening, and he, upon examination stated that though the injuries were extremely serious Ray had a very slight chance for recovery.

Mr. Ray was suffering from concussion of the brain and cerebral hemorrhages resulting from a compound fracture of the skull. He did not fully regain consciousness at any time since the accident, but at times seemed to understand, in a slight degree, things that were said to him.

Ray was returning home on the one o'clock west-bound Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction car Saturday afternoon when he fell from the platform on which he was standing and struck on his head. He was picked up unconscious and blood was oozing from his nose, mouth and ears. He almost carried Gary Updike of Rushville, the conductor, with him from the car.

CHAPTER I.

Dan Blair.

The fact that much he said, because of his unbecoming slang, was incomprehensible did not take from the charm of his conversation as far as the duchess of Breakwater was concerned. The brightness of his expression, his quick, clear look upon them, his beautiful young smile, his not too frequent laugh, his "new gayness," as the duchess called his spirits, his supernatural youth, his difference, credited him with what nine-tenths of the human race lack—charm.

His tone was not too crudely western; neither did he suggest the ultra east, with which they were familiar. American women went down well enough with them, but American men were unpopular, and when the visitor arrived, Lady Galorey did not even announce him to the party gathered for "the first shoot."

The others were in the army when the ninth gun, a young chap, six feet of him, blond as the wheat, cleanly set up and very good to look at, came in with Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, Lady Galorey, his hostess, greeted them.

"Oh, here you are, are you? Lord Mersey, Sir John Fairthorpe." She mumbled the rest of the names of her companions as though she did not want them understood, then waved toward the young chap, calling him Mr. Dan Blair, and he, as she hesitated, added:

"From Blairtown, Montana."

"And give him a gun, will you, Gordon?"

and liked him. The old gentleman bought a little property about that time that turned out to be a gold mine."

With persistency the duchess said: "How do you know it is 'clean money,' Edith? Not that it makes a rap of difference," she laughed prettily, "but how do you know that he is rich to this horrible extent?"

Lady Galorey put down her address book impatiently: "Does he look like an impostor?"

The other returned: "Even the archangel fell, my dear Edith!"

"Well," returned her friend, "this one is too young to have fallen far," and she shut up her list in desperation.

The duchess sat down on the edge of the lounge and raised her expressive eyes to Lady Galorey, who once more looked at her sarcastically, and went on:

"Gordon liked the old gentleman; he was extraordinarily generous—quite a type. They called the town after him—Blairtown; that is where the son 'hails from.' He was a little lad when Gordon was out and Mr. Blair promised that Dan should come over here and see us one day, and this," she tapped the table with her pen, "seems to be the day, for he came down upon us in this breezy way without even sending a wire, 'just turned up' last night. Gordon's mad about him. His father has been dead a year, and he is just twenty-two."

"Good heavens!" murmured the duchess. Lady Galorey opened her address book again.

"Gordon's got him terribly on his mind, my dear; he has forbidden any gambling or any bridge as long as the boy is with us."

Her companion rose and thrust her hands into the pocket of her tweed coat. She laughed softly, then went over to the long window where without, across the pane, the early winter mists were flying, chased by a furtive sun.

"Gordon said that the boy's father treated him like a king, and that while the boy is here he is going to look out for him."

Over her shoulder the other threw out coldly:

"You speak as though he were in a den of thieves. I didn't know Gordon's honor was so fine. As for me, I don't gamble, you know."

Lady Galorey had decided that Lily's insistent remaining gave her a chance to fill her fountain pen. She was, therefore, carefully squirting in the ink, and she flushed at her friend's last words.

Lady Galorey herself was the best bridge player in London, and cards were her passion. She did not remind the lady in the window that there were other games besides bridge, but kept both her tongue and her temper.

After a little silence in which the women followed each her own thoughts, the duchess murmured:

"I'll toddle upstairs, Edie—let you write. Where did you say we were going to meet the guns for food?"

"At the gate by the White Pastures. There'll be a cart and a motor going, whichever you like, around two."

"Right," her grace nodded; "I'll be on time, dearest."

And Lady Galorey with a relieved sigh heard the door close behind the duchess. Wiping her fountain pen delicately with a bit of chamois, she murmured: "Well, Dan Blair is out of Eden, poor dear, if he met her by the gate."

A fortune of a round ten million pounds was a small part of what this young man had come into by direct inheritance from the Copper King of Blairtown, Montana. For once the money figure had not been exaggerated, but Lady Galorey did not know about the rest of Dan's inheritance.

The young man whistling in his rooms in the bachelor quarters of Osdene Park House, dressed for dinner without the aid of a valet. When Lord Galorey had asked him "where his man servant was," Dan had grinned. "Gosh, I wouldn't have one of those Johnnies hanging around me—never did have! I can put on my stockings all right! There was a chap on the boat I came over in who let his man put on his stockings. Can you beat that?" Blair had laughed again. "I think if anybody tickled my feet that way I would be likely to kick him in the eye."

Dressing in his room he whistled under his breath a song from a newly-popular comic opera; and he intoned with a clear young voice a line of the words:

"Should-you-go-to-Mandalay,
Out through his high window, if he had looked, he would have seen the misty sweep of the park under the faint moonrise and fine shadows that the leaves made in the veiled light, but he did not look out. He was dressing for dinner without a valet and giving a great deal of care to his toilet; for the first time he was to dine in the house of a nobleman and in the presence of a duchess; not that it meant a great deal to him—he thought it was "funny."

In Dan Blair's twenty-two years of utterly happy days his one grief had been the death of his father. As soon as the old man had died Dan had gone off into the Rockies with his guides and not "shown up" for months. When he came back to Blairtown, as he expressed it, "he packed his grip and beat it while his shoes were good," for the one place he could remember his father had suggested for him to go.

Blairtown was very much impressed when the heir came in from the Rockies with "a big kill," and the orphan's ease did not seem especially disturbed. But no one in the town knew how the boy's heart ached for the old man. When Dan was six years old his father had literally picked him up by the nape of the neck and thrown him into the water like a pup and watched him swim. At eight he sent the boy off with a gun to rough camp. Then he took Dan down in the mines with the men. His education had been won in Blairtown, at a school called public, but which in reality was nothing more than a pioneer district school.

On Sundays Dan dressed up and went with his father to church twice a day and in the week days his father took him to the prayer meetings, and at sixteen Dan went to college in California. He had just completed his course when old Blair died. Then he inherited fifty million dollars.

Tennessee Girl Rejected the Man of Her Parents' Choice.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Rather than marry her cousin, for whom she claimed no love, Margaret Zerill, sixteen years old, ran away from home, when her own parents, together with her cousin's, insisted on the union. She was first heard from when a letter mailed from Chicago was received telling that she would wed the man of her choice, despite the protests of the parents on both sides.

scarlet fever, whooping cough and influenza. The northern sanitary section had the highest death rate due to diphtheria, measles, pneumonia, diarrheal disease, puerperal fever and cancer.

Speaking of the record of violent deaths in the state during the month, Dr. Hurty said:

"Why these suicides of more than one every day? Why, also, these accidental deaths—about seven daily? Would it not be wise to give the State Board of Health sufficient support to study the conditions that produce great destruction of life in one month? It is said the law is jealous of human life. If a mother destroys her child, society interferes with energy until she is apprehended and punished.

"Yet, month by month, the law permits this awful record of murders, suicides and accidental deaths to go on, with little or no effort to prevent it. I can not think this is good business. A thorough investigation into the cause of destruction by violence would be the first step toward trying to lessen the evil."

MENTAL TROUBLE IS SUICIDE CAUSE

Generally Accepted Belief is That Caused Emmett Jobe to Take His Life.

"SERENADE" NIGHT BEFORE
In His Nervous Condition it is Not Thought This Noisy Demonstration Was Beneficial.

The funeral services of Emmett I. Jobe, who committed suicide at his home near Alquina in Fayette county, Friday morning, were held at the Springersville Christian church yesterday afternoon. The Connersville News adds concerning his suicide:

In the matter of the suicide of Emmett Isaac Jobe, south of Alquina Friday, nothing new has developed so far as is known. The circumstances of his death contained nothing within themselves to serve as an explanation, and the theory of a return of that mental disorder which afflicted him some years ago is the only one which seems to harmonize with the awful facts.

The grief-stricken young wife and other relatives, left the house south of Alquina Friday not long after the tragedy was discovered and went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Jobe, parents of the deceased.

The terrific shock of the young man's death is being born by his young widow and his mother, who, as was natural, were worst affected by it, as well as could have been expected. They are surrounded by their friends who are doing as much as sympathy can do to dispel the sterner aspects of their sorrow.

Those who have known Emmett Jobe all of his life say that he was naturally a highly sensitive person, given to strange moods, and possessed of other and striking peculiarities of temperament. Of late this condition had seemingly increased, attended by a general nervousness which indicated the coming on of some very serious illness.

Since the tragedy there has been a great deal of talk about the charivari or so called old-fashioned serenade, which a crowd of the young people of the Alquina neighborhood gave young Jobe and his bride on the night before the morning of his death. A crowd of the young folk gathered about the home and according to custom, raised such a din with tin pans, dumb-bells, drums and firearms as would have made an old citizen of Bedlam bat his eyes with amazement. In the shattered state of the young bridegroom's nerves it is not likely that this outburst was pleasant or beneficial to him. It is learned, however, that he took the demonstration in good humor, as it was, of course, intended, and it is not seriously believed that it had any direct bearing upon the horror which the next morning was to bring forth.

With the Caloric

Come to the Demonstration

THE "Caloric" does better cooking and baking than is possible by any other method. That may sound like a strong statement to you who do not know the possibilities of this wonderful time and labor saving stove, but it is founded upon absolute results. Foods cooked in "Caloric" are far more nutritious and palatable. The delicate, delicious flavor of meats are far more savory when cooked the "Caloric" way, because none of the wholesomeness is lost by evaporation.

The "Caloric" roasts and bakes food in its raw state without first partially cooking it in an ordinary stove or reheating it before serving.

If you have never tasted food cooked in the "Caloric" Cookstove you cannot realize the vast difference in flavor.

Come to our store tomorrow and let us demonstrate to you how you can reduce your meat and grocery bills with a "Caloric" Fireless Cookstove. Come and bring your friends.

Mrs. Knobloch of the "Caloric Co" will be glad to meet you and explain this wonderful stove.

head caused by the rope slipping when the assassin was hung are to be seen very plainly.

The collection in the museum consisted of many other relics of immense value. The well preserved skeletons of animals that roamed the earth in ancient times abounded and the collection of old coins that are as rare as any which the local people declare they ever saw were to be found in the building. The backyard is filled with choicest specimens of roses grown and is given over to the cultivation of that flower alone.

Mr. Worth, the owner of the collection, told the Rushville party a strange story. He said that it was his ambition early in life to collect together relics of immense value and that he started out at the age of sixteen to fulfill his desires. He said that he had been at the same work all of his life and the museum was the result after sixty-four years of labor.

The Rushville people thought it strange that such a man and such a museum should be hidden away in an alley in a little Indiana town of one hundred and fifty inhabitants. The owner said that he had lived until two years ago in New York City, where he had made all of his collections and where he had the museum on display. He said that he had no relatives with the exception of a sister and her daughter at Springport, and that he came there to spend his last days. Since the museum was the fulfillment of his life's work and ambition, he brought it with him and displays it for a small charge to all who happen that way. He told the local people that he had never advertised it and had never attempted to attract anyone there.
